Abstract The impact of globalization on fragile ecosystems is a complex problem. In the Amazon River basin, globalization has led to massive deforestation as multinational corporations exploit the rainforest's natural resources. In particular, large scale industrial agriculture has caused significant damage to the local environment. In an effort to resist the loss of this ecosystem, indigenous peoples in the Amazon basin are reaching out to each other, to nongovernmental organizations (NGOs), and to other interest groups to combat industrial agriculture and promote sustainable regional agriculture. Although these efforts have had mixed success, it is hoped that the native peoples of this region can continue to live on their

TEXT, CITATIONS, AND HEADINGS

Use boldface for headings and subpoints. Consult the APA publication manual for other heading and subpoints.

After the first reference, use single author and et al.[¬] for works with 3-5 authors (Walker, et. al., 2000).

For 3 or more authors, use et al. in all citations, including the first.

The page number is not needed unless a direct quote is used. An ellipsis followed by a period (....) indicates that information has been omitted.

REFERENCES

References are listed in alphabetical order and double-spaced. List all the sources used.

Italicize titles of books and journals. Capitalize all major words in the journal title.

For other works (books, articles, web pages), capitalize only the first letter of the first word of a title or subtitle.

Give the last name and initials for all authors unless the work has more than 20 authors. In that case, use the first author's name followed by the abbreviation et al. which means "and others." If the author is unknown, alphabetize the source by the first major word of the title. Next, enclose the date in parentheses.

Sustainable Lifeways, Endangered Lives

The previous thousands of years of human influence on the Amazon is slight, however, compared with the modern-day destruction of rain forests around the globe, and in the Amazon River basin in particular. The sources of this destruction vary from country to country and year to year, with certain years affected more by climate change and other years seeing greater destruction form human initiatives, such as logging (Walker, Moran, & Anselin, 2000).

Cattle ranching has also led to the deforestation of the Amazon. The Cattle population of the Amazon nations increased from 26 million in 1990 to 57 million in 2002 (Prugh, 2004). . . . Ranching, Barrett (2001) observes, "doesn't require nutrient-rich soil" and therefore "took the place vacated by other activities, along with the blame for soil erosion and loss of biodiversity" (p.1).

Note: The author and year is in the signal phrase, and the page number is required with a direct quote.

APA General

Guidelines

The American Psychological Association (APA) is the style of documentation often used in the social science disciplines to indicate how a writer has incorporated research information into the paper. The two main components of APA style documentation are in-text citations (brief references in the text of the paper) and a reference page (a complete alphabetical listing of each source) at the end of the paper.

Choosing to use any part of someone else's work, whether using a direct quotation or simply paraphrasing that writer's ideas, requires acknowledgement. By providing accurate citations and references, a writer is able to build credibility with readers and direct them to research sources. Additionally, carefully and accurately citing sources in APA style will help students avoid plagiarism. (See the SWIC Student Handbook Student Conduct Code for more information regarding plagiarism.)

APA Formatting (Always check with your instructor for specific requirements)

- Set the paper for double spacing, including the reference page and block quotations.
- Use a standard font such as Times New Roman size 12.
- Set margins at one inch on all sides; don't add extra spacing between paragraphs or after titles.
- Use a separate title page and a running head followed by a shortened form of the title and insert the page number.
- The running head will not appear on every page of the paper. When inserting the header, be sure to select "different first page." Tab all information in the running head so it begins at the left-hand margin. (Check with your instructor for header requirements).
- Subsequent pages of the paper will need the title typed in all caps and the page number. (Check with your instructor for additional requirements).
- Check the instructor's paper requirements for including an abstract (a summary of the paper's purpose and content in 150-250 words). An abstract appears on the second page. The word "abstract" should be centered under the heading (Do not bold, underline, italicize, punctuate or use special fonts).
- Position visuals such as charts, images, etc., near the corresponding text in the paper and provide a caption with notes and citation information about the source. Number figures and tables consecutively in the paper.
- Start the reference page on a separate page: it's part of the paper and continues with the next page number.
